

Understanding and Sharing the Feelings of Others

SCENARIO 1

Tahir was at lunch with his friends, but when he ran to the bathroom, he left his phone on the table. While he was gone, his friend Hiba grabbed Tahir's phone and started looking through his texts. The first text she saw was an angry one from Tahir's mom because he failed mathematics.

How would that make Tahir feel?

Tahir may feel that his privacy has been violated and may lose trust in his friend.

Why would Tahir not want to tell his friends about his bad result?

Tahir may consider his grades to be private information.

Were Hiba's actions acceptable?

Students should consider their own norms around privacy connected to both grades and their phone, as well as what they expect from their friends.

How would the other friends at the lunch table feel about Hiba's actions?

Students should consider how they would act if they saw potentially inappropriate behavior.

What do you think about Hiba? Was Hiba acting ethically? Would you want to be friends with Hiba?

Answers may vary.

How would you feel if someone did that to you?

Answers may vary.

Is snooping ever okay? What if you are worried about your friend?

Students should reflect on their own norms around privacy and personal relationships.

Source: This content is hosted by Meta and currently includes learning resources drawn from Youth and Media at the Berkman Klein Center for Internet & Society at Harvard University under a Creative Commons Attribution-ShareAlike 4.0 International license. You can make use of them, including copying and preparing derivative works, whether commercial or non-commercial, so long as you attribute Youth and Media as the original source and follow the other terms of the license, sharing any further works under the same terms.

Understanding and Sharing the Feelings of Others

SCENARIO 2

Jad is talking to Dima when he trips and falls into the sand. Dima thinks he looks really funny and takes a picture of him, but Jad doesn't laugh and appears embarrassed.

Why might Dima post the photo online?

Students should recognize Dima's motivations: getting laughs or likes is usually an acceptable motivator for posting something online, as long as it does not come at the expense of another person.

Why is Jad upset?

Students should reflect on how to consider others' feelings when using social media.

What do you think Jad should say to Dima?

Students should come up with strategies to address this behavior.

How would you feel if someone took an embarrassing picture of you? Would you want that online?

Students should consider their own norms around what they want to be shared online by others.

Is this situation an incident of bullying?

Students should consider what constitutes bullying and discuss the particulars of this specific situation.

Source: This content is hosted by Meta and currently includes learning resources drawn from Youth and Media at the Berkman Klein Center for Internet & Society at Harvard University under a Creative Commons Attribution-ShareAlike 4.0 International license. You can make use of them, including copying and preparing derivative works, whether commercial or non-commercial, so long as you attribute Youth and Media as the original source and follow the other terms of the license, sharing any further works under the same terms.

Understanding and Sharing the Feelings of Others

SCENARIO 3

Lama is a 15-year-old student with two brothers, a mom, and a lot of friends and schoolmates. Lama and Rayan are schoolmates and are working together on a project in science class. Yesterday, they had a science test and when everyone received their results, Rayan noticed that Lama didn't look happy with the result. The next week, Lama is absent from school for several days, so Rayan has to work on the science project by himself. When she returns, she tells Rayan that she has to see the doctor, but she doesn't say anything else.

Does anyone need to know about Lama's test results? Her medical history? Why?

Students should consider how different information has different levels of privacy. Lama's results at school are sensitive information that she would not want her friends, schoolmates, or the public at large to know. However, they are not private to her parents/guardians. The same goes for her medical history, though that information is much more sensitive.

Whom might Lama want to talk to about any of these issues?

Lama may personally want to keep her information private. This decision should be respected. She can also choose to share some, but not all, private information. For example, she may share struggles she has with results at school with her parents/guardians, but not her friends.

In your life, what are examples of information that you want your parents/guardians to see but not your friends or vice versa?

Students should consider their own choices regarding privacy.

Source: This content is hosted by Meta and currently includes learning resources drawn from Youth and Media at the Berkman Klein Center for Internet & Society at Harvard University under a Creative Commons Attribution-ShareAlike 4.0 International license. You can make use of them, including copying and preparing derivative works, whether commercial or non-commercial, so long as you attribute Youth and Media as the original source and follow the other terms of the license, sharing any further works under the same terms.